CORBIN TALKS

Meets Tax Officials of Many Towns.

Tax Commissioner William H. Corbin, opened the meeting he is holding with the assessors in city hall, this afternoon, at 2 o'clock with a speech in which he discussed briefly the tax laws of Connecticut, defined the duty of the assessors to list all property at its fair value under the law, and otherwise said things calculated to be lpful to the assessors.

here were present a score or more tax officials from different towns self a dozen of a similar nature which all a doen of a similar nature which ar Corbin has called in various porons of the state to enable him to eet the assessors and instruct them their duties.

Mr. Corbin spoke briefly of the ef-forts that have been made to tax certain forms of property at a lower rate than other forms of property are taxed. He thought some such laws ght to exist, but at present, he said ought to exist, but at present, he said they would be unconstitutional in most states and they are not laws which the voters are likely to accept.

Among those present were the following, J. Henry Blakeman, David Coe, Frank R. Sammis, Stratford, Wilson G. Usenek, L. A. Grannet, East Haven, Edward C. Smith, Edward A. Ryan, Westport; W. S. #### BIRMINGHAM WILL ACT

"The matter certainly will be reported to the commissioners," said Superintendent Birmingham, this morning, speaking of the outrage committed upon Emil Brecklin of 639 Arctic street, on Park avenue, by Special Policeman Michael Murphy, Fred C, Walker, Patrick O'Brien and H. Smith, a painter, Sunday afternoon. The four men last named were H. Smith, a painter. Sunday afternoon. The four men last named were in a wagon coming towards the city. They had been visiting Charles Wade the milkman, and had been drinking. When they met Brecklin and his companion the quartette stopped the team, held up the two men, who had been nutting and asked them where they got the nuts. Brecklin was shown a special policeman's badge. They then placed him under arrest and ordered him and his companion to get into the wagon. After going a little ways Brecklin was pushed out bodily. He reported the matter to Captain Arnold and last night identified the four men in the detective's office at police headquarters. Walker and O'Brien work in the stone quarry at the rear of the jail.

Mr. Nichols, a foreman in the quarry, who was reported as being one of the quartette, was not among them and had nothing to do with the trouble.

At the station were a number of the medical fraternity of the city, who had expected to give the Doctor and his bride a rousing send off. From New York the couple will go to Washington and Baltimore. In the latter place Doctor Quinn will renew his college days. On their return to this city Dr. and Mrs. Quinn will reside in the West End.

Dr. Quinn is one of the youngest and most progressive of the local medical fraternity, having his office at 1286 State street. He enjoys an extensive practice in the West End. Dr. Quinn received his M. D. at the Baltimore Medical College. He received his preliminary education in the public schools of this city, completing his course at the Taft school in Watertown. After completing his college course in 1906 Dr. Quinn joined forces with St. Vincent's hospital as interne. Two years ago he opened an office in the West End. Madame Marcella Sembrich received last night perhaps as great an ovation as has ever been tendered by the people of Bridgeport. Enthusiasm ran riotously through the audience from the highest pinnacle of the gallery to the most fashionable box occupants. Even Paderewsky, idol of the fair sex, falled on his Bridgeport appearances to evoke anything like the the fair sex, falled on his Bridgeport appearances to evoke anything like the demonstration of last evening.

Assisting the prima dona were Francis Rogers, baritone, and Frank Laforge, planist. Mr. Rogers was, perhaps, unknown to the majority of the audience until this recital; but the impression made by him will doubtless cause any of the musicians present to hear him again and as often as possible. His baritone is truly rich. Each note was perfect from the lowest to the highest register. Between "The Clown's Serenade" and the "Border Balad" it would be difficult to choose, the sweetly pathetic, winning tones of the former equaling and being equaled by the perfection of the bold, martial spirit of the latter. Mr. Rogers is an artist of the highest order.

Forge elicited abundant applause. His program was devoted to Chopin. The first two numbers brought out his easy interpretation of the mystical Chopin. The last selection, the Etude in G flat was the most popular with the audience. It was executed with the audience. It was executed with a master technique and a most enchanting musical interpretation.

Madame Sembrich quite captivated the audience in the graceful manner in which she forced Mr. LaForge to acknowledge part of the applause.

the most effort on the Prima Donna's programme; and she was fully equal to the work.

Madame Sembrich seems to retain the same power to charm in the same wonderful way.

It was after her waltz song that enthusiasm reached the climax. No one attempted to leave the theatre but all continued to applaud until she graciously seated herself at the plano and in an impromptu manner executed a charming little song.

Court Rules Against Him in Hatters' Boycott Suit.

George White of this city desires to be freed from Ethel May Course White of parts unknown. The coupment was precipitated between Attorney Davenport for the plaintiffs and Attorney Beach for the defense in the Danbury Hatters' case in the United States District Court today. Attorney Davenport insisted that one of the witnesses John W. Sculley, sceretary of the Norwalk Hat Trimmers' Union, tell whether or not a resolution was adopted at last convention of the American Federation of Labor boycotting the New York Sun. Beach protested vigorously against the introduction of such testimony, declaring it entirely incompetent and unnecessary to the progress of the case.

Attorney Davenport declared it was perfectly proper testimony as it tended to show the plotting of the union people against firms that have acted contrary to their ideas of what recognition unionism should receive at the hands of employers.

The court ruled the question relating to the New York Sun out. Other secretaries of the various unions involved in the suit were put on the stand this afternoon.

TYSON DIVORCE UP ON MOTION

Six Uncontested Divorces on Short Calendar

The short calendar list in the Superfor court for Friday contains one interesting divorce case, but only a preliminary hearing on a demand for a legal answer will be held. It is the case of Grace E. Starr Tyson of Greenwich against John A. Tyson of Greenwich and New York, the celebrated automobilist, whose name appears in the press more than often in some sort of an accident or escapade, while his cars have won out in a number of races and hill climbs. The couple were married May 23, 1908, but did not reside long together. In her complaint the plaintiff alleges intemperance, cruelty and infidelity, and also asks for allmony and a change of name. She says her husband has an income of $15,000 annually from his real estate holdings.

name. She says her husband has an income of $15,000 annually from his real estate holdings.

There are six uncontested divorce cases on the calendar, five of which originate in this city. The most important is that of Archibald A. Hayward against Katherine Hayward. Hayward is a clerk in his father's market in South avenue. After their marriage, Aug. 15, 1901, the Haywards went to reside in Broad street. In the same house lived Clarence and Florence Woodside, husband and wife. All was serene for some time but Mrs. Hayward and Mr. Woodside became too intimate. It broke up both families and ended in the divorce court. Last May Mrs. Woodside was granted a decree from Clarence on the ground of infielity, Mrs. Hayward being named as co-respondent, Mr. Hayward was a witness in the case and testified against his wife. Now Hayward desires a divorce and names Woodside as the co-respondent.
